

Portable Storage

Portable storage is getting more and more popular for big moves. Why is this happening? Because this is an entirely new way to get your stuff moved and coordinate bringing your belongings together at a distant location. And the best part is that you dont have to drive the truck.

How portable storage units help your move

It is very stressful to try to move and get everything packed when you need it packed. You set an appointment with the moving company and cant waste a moment of time when they arrive-- youre paying by the hour, after all. And nothing can remove all the stress from your move, you can make life a ton easier by using a portable storage unit to manage parts of this event.

See, the portable storage container is what your belongings are actually moved in. And after your portable storage container shows up, you can keep it around for a while, so theres no rush.

Portable storage units are weather safe so there are no fears about getting things wet or moldy. This helps you get the things that can go into deep storage packed away way before the actual move. When the real moving day comes, you already have the less necessary things packed way in the back and you can add the more day to day stuff in. Then the unit is picked up by the portable storage company driver team. On the other end, they will come pick up the portable storage container after youve called them to say you are all finished unpacking.

Moving to a temporary location before your new home is ready? The company can store your container in a special portable storage warehouse until youre ready for delivery. Very convenient.

Long term storage with portable storage containers.

Whether youve moved from a larger home to a smaller one or you just have more possessions than you have room for, chances are youll want to de-clutter at some time in your life. On the other hand, its no fun to think you need to sell something just because you dont have space for it in the moving truck. And while non-portable storage units are always an option, the convenience of a portable storage unit makes it an ideal choice.

Portable storage units can be used for storing your things. After you pack the container, they will take it to a safe and climate controlled environment until you need it delivered. Do you need access to your portable storage unit while its stored? Call to have the unit re-delivered, or even visit it in the warehouse yourself.
